INTRODUCTION

In a time of ever-escalating shipping challenges, outdated technology prevents shippers from reaching their full potential. Today's landscape demands more than traditional Freight Audit and Payment (FAP) solutions.

Only by adopting a fully integrated solution that allows you to optimize transportation spend will you meet the broader challenges ahead.

FAP: The traditional method

For decades, FAP has been instrumental to reducing freight spend and streamlining non-value-added workflows. However, the solution is not equipped to holistically support the following:

- Carrier sourcing
- Planning & execution
- Freight bill processing
- Freight bill payment

“The physical movement of goods (transportation) is intrinsically linked with both data flow and financial flows”

VP of Sales, Infios

FAP: The holistic approach

Today's logistics world calls for a more robust, integrated solution. This is where Infios's value-added FAP solutions come into play. They are designed to holistically address the whole range of challenges that shippers face.

Beyond standard FAP capabilities, they are able to integrate carrier sourcing data, freight bill processing data and more, to introduce a sophisticated level of actionable intelligence. This not only results in more efficient shipping operations, but it also enhances customer satisfaction and loyalty.

Embracing the unexpected

Infios's FAP solutions stand out in their ability to deliver unexpected yet beneficial outcomes for shippers. They not only make shippers' operations more efficient but also turns them into a "Shipper of Choice." This status is more than a label; it reflects an enhanced capacity to meet end-customer demands and industry standards.

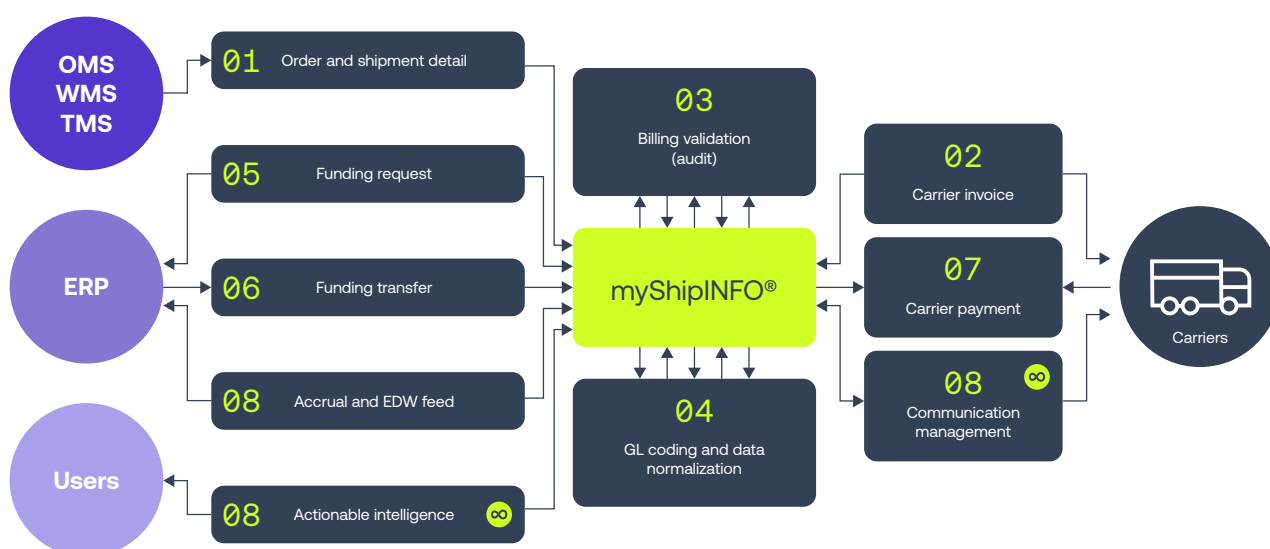

"The reality is that many shippers are challenged without a single source of truth between their transportation functions and their finance functions."

VP of Sales, Infios
